MARV WOLFGAN
EDITOR
MARK GRUENWALD
ASSISTANT EDITOR

Dear Marv, Keith and all you other Marvel Madmen!

AMAZING SPIDER-MAN #192 was nearly perfect in every detail. I have just feread it for the third time and feel I must let you know. I'm a 1st class petty officer aboard the U.S.S. Tarawa and have been a Marvel Madman way back since FF #1. I am a weatherman writing this while the ship is at general quarters. I doubt if the Commanding Officer would be happy if he knew my "special contributions" to fighting this "fake" war exercise.

Enough of me—I wrote this to tell you my pleasure with the latest Spidey. The cover was great in every detail except the price, but the increase was inevitable. The splash page was not much of a change from the cover, but what does "LG 388" mean? (It's a code Lenny Grow, our Production Chief, uses to number all our stories—MW.)

Now for the story itself. It had everything I've been hoping for since Marv took over the book. I just don't know how to thank you for the attention to character development and little details like reminding us there's a person named Peter Parker behind Spidey's mask. All the problems caused by Spidey being handcuffed to Jameson were priceless.

Hope to see you at the San Diego Con. I'll be out of the Navy then and off this ship.

Jerry Ray Edwards
1690 B. Elm Ave.
San Diego, CA 02154

Dear Friendly Neighborhood Armadillos!

What what what what what??? Just what happened between panels 2 and 9 of AMAZING SPIDER-MAN #192? Did Jonah pull Spidey's mask off? If he did, why does he keep quiet about it? Because he's afraid Spidey would kill him? Because he wants to capitalize on the info later? But he wasn't at all sure he'd survive till a "later"? On page 27 JJJ speaks as if he still doesn't know who Spidey is. Then what stopped him from unmasking him? Passerby? A sense of guilt? Did he feel deep down that he had been unfair to Spidey and couldn't make himself take the step that would finally end his career? Is that credible? Or, having been deceived (so he thinks) once by Green Goblin III's photographs into thinking that Parker was Spider-Man, does JJJ now refuse to believe any evidence that the two are the same person? Did he unmask Spidey, see Parker's face, and decide that it must be yet another facemask that he couldn't remove? You've given us a shock with this unmasking question, but it'll seem like a trick unless you've come up with an intelligent, convincing way to solve the problems it creates.

It's nice to hear that this is the last Spider-Slayer story. Worn-out storylines should be retired; in fact, it'd be nice if they were retired before they wore out, so we could remember only successes and not failures. I hope some future writer doesn't put Marla Madison back in the Spidey-playing business, or invent a new scientist to carry on the tradition, or create a Spencer Smythe, Jr. One can only hope.

Similarly, it would be nice if JJJ finally stopped creating and commissioning supervillains to kill Spider-Man who end up going after him instead. You know this has reached absurd proportions when issue 192 has both the Fly and Smythe ganging up on their would-be employer:

IT'S COMING! THE ALL-NEW! ALL DIFFERENT!
MACHINE MAN by MARV WOLFGAN and STEVE DITKO!

"24 Hours Till Doomsday" was quite a successful story. I can't recall offhand another Spider-Man story that generated so much suspense. The tension remains taut throughout as the two entrapped men rush about New York, running into one obstacle after another, finding every possible means of escape ineffective. Just as importantly, the tension is created by their dialogue, not just Jameson's final bursts of hysteria, but Spidey's grim determination, accompanied by his unusually but understandably nasty putdowns of Jameson. The ultimate solution is quite logical, and its implementation exciting enough to bring the story to an emotional peak.

Spidey's judgment of Jameson as "certifiably nuts" isn't that much of an overstatement. JJJ may be otherwise quite sane, but when we see how he acts under so much strain, it's very obvious that his hatred of Spider-Man has passed beyond any reasonable limits into monomania. He's obviously greatly in need of psychiatric help, and it might be interesting if Robertson comes to suspect this, and agonizes over what to do about it.

In the final pages you revive our memories of the motive Stan gave Jameson for hating Spider-Man many years ago. It's a believable one, but Stan's soliloquy for JJJ made the latter seem a conscious hypocrite, who only pretended to believe Spidey a menace because he was jealous of him. This issue's Jameson is more complex and credible: he recognizes his own psychological weakness compared to Spider-Man but he has developed the paranoid fantasy that Spider-Man must be stopped because he's out to expose those frailties to the world. Indeed, JJJ, realizing his own flaws whenever he sees Spidey, can't imagine that the world doesn't perceive them whenever it thinks of the superhero, too.

The Spider-Slayers, we are told, are gone for good. Now we see Jameson showing a desperate need for psychiatric attention. Can this stay the same forever in the book? Might it be that by issue 300, this book will be ready for another big change, even more startling than Gwen's death? By that point, will Jameson have either gone mad or finally overcome his irrational hatred? Again, who's to say?

Dear Marv,

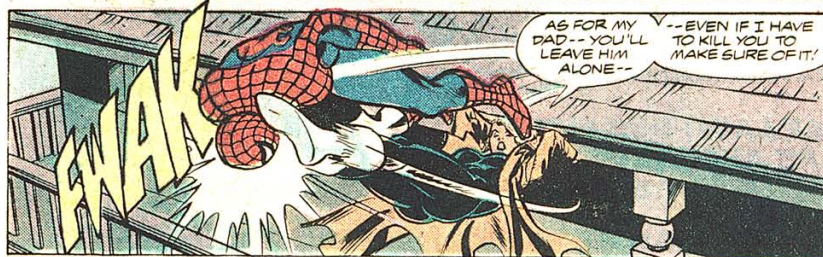

With regard to SPIDER-MAN #191's letters page, I must say I've always enjoyed Gilbert and Sullivan's Patience, and there must be many more readers than myself who were startled to learn that the comic opera's two poets, Reginald Bunthorne and Archibald Grosvenor, are Marvel fans. Or, in other words, to quote the opera:

"Now is not this ridiculous—and is not this preposterous?
A thorough-paced absurdity—explain it if you can."

Peter, or Sir Ruthven, we don't vouch for the names you Marvelmaniacs sign to your missives, just that they are genuine. So you can call yourself Archie Grosvenor or Archie Bunker... just as long as ya write.

So, seeya in thirty days. Till then, be good!

KRYPTONITE ROCKS!!

Attention, friends of Superman!

Do you really want to be a friend of Superman?
Well, now you can, by owning a Kryptonite™ Rock!
Kryptonite™ Rocks come from the planet Krypton.
Some time ago this planet exploded, sending huge pieces of rocks into space.
For years the Kryptonite™ has fallen to earth and been captured by the enemy (we know who they are) who use it to try and kill one of our land's greatest heroes - Superman. You see, Kryptonite™ is the only substance against which Superman has no defense.

A short while ago we (the good guys) spotted a very large piece of Kryptonite™ Rock about to smash into the earth. We immediately sent out a search party to find and bring back the Kryptonite™ Rock before it fell into the wrong hands.

We now have the Kryptonite™ Rock broken down into a million pieces and are making it available to all of Superman's friends for safe-keeping.

Kryptonite™ Rocks are blue-green in color, and are safe, non-toxic and most exciting of all!
GLOW IN THE DARK!

So help keep Superman from being destroyed and at the same time own an amazing Kryptonite™ Rock that glows in the dark.

Kryptonite™ Rocks can be yours for only $2.50 plus a shipping charge.

BULLPEN BULLETINS

THE MOST IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE YEAR!

ITEM! Talk about your close calls! A few weeks ago, a boogie of bullpeners gathered at the home of Ramblin' Roger and Devilish Dickie McKenzie for coffee, cards and cupcakes. As you might expect, everyone had a wild and crazy time...but the evening was very nearly marred by tragedy! The party was winding down when Marv Wolfman set out in his Pinto for his house in Flushing. He had only gone twenty or so blocks when suddenly his car was slammed from behind while making a turn! The poor Pinto was instantly twisted into a total wreck! Somehow, though, Marv emerged from the disaster shaken, but without serious injury, and miraculously, the other driver was also unhurt. We're all very happy that only the cars were crunched, but for Michele Wolfman, baby Jessica, all of us here in the Bullpen, and Marv's trillion or so fans, it was a bit too close for comfort!

ITEM! Speaking of Marvelous Marv, have you got a treat for you Wolfmanites. Fantastic Four freaks and literature lovers! It's Doomsday, the novel, featuring an all-new epic starring the fabulous FF, written by, yep, our own Mr. Wolfman! Marv isn't talking much about what's inside the book, and whenever we ask him, he just puts on his big, smug read-it-and-see grin. We've learned from past experience not to doubt the significance of that grin, so we'd humbly advise you to buy a copy, and if you can bear to stop feasting your eyes on the gorgeous Bob Larkin cover painting, read it. After you're finished, and your molecules have settled, get ready for another plunge into adventure, with Captain America in his own novel, entitled Holocaust for Hire! This stunning tale is by Joseph Silva, who did such a bang-up job on the first Hulk novel a while back, but Marv's involved in this one too, as one of the co-editors (that guy is everywhere!). Should we mention that Dave Cockrum painted the cover? Or will that cause riots at the bookstores as his Legion of fans fight over the last few copies? Oh, well...just follow the crowd to wherever Simon & Schuster Pocket Books are sold and take a mere $1.75 with you for each novel, friends. And keep

STAN'S SOAPBOX

Face front, frantic ones! This is it! I promised to clue you in about our top-secret Project X, and far be it from me to hold out on the hallowed hordes of Marveldom Assembled! But first, a little background...

Remember how we've often discussed the fact that comicbooks are the most maligned members of the media world? For years your Marvel Bullpen has been trying to bring them the recognition and acclaim they so richly deserve. We've longed to produce a comicbook that would take the public by storm; a masterpiece to thrill our devotees and detractors alike. We're talking about a true work of art, a colossal collection of the finest in story and illustration, printed on superb paper, with colors so vivid they're almost on fire! It would be a visual blast, a feast for the eyes, presenting the greatest talents from every nation on earth as well as the most gifted legend-makers Marvel has to offer! It would be higher-priced, but still the bargain of the century!

Okay! We're gonna do it! Even as I write these history-making words, the mightiest comicbook bullpen of all time is excitedly preparing, perfecting, and producing the most unbelievably spectacular first issue of a fantasy comicbook you've ever dreamed possible! You'll notice I keep calling it a comicbook—for it is a comicbook—but it's the ultimate comicbook—the version we've been fated to bring you since Marvel began! Yes, this is the project for which Marvel was surely destined—the creation that will change the image of comicbooks for all time to come!

The title? ODYSSEY! Remember it! ODYSSEY! "A prolonged voyage. An intellectual or spiritual quest!" ODYSSEY! A senses-staggering journey into the most dazzling worlds of unbridled imagination! ODYSSEY! An awesome, eye-filling explosion of high-tension excitement that'll leave you breathless! ODYSSEY! In case you haven't guessed, we're subtly suggesting that you shall not miss the first, fabulous, limited-edition issue—of—what's that name again?—oh yeah! ODYSSEY!

Now look, you know I try to avoid too much huckstering in this cultural little column of mine; but this isn't an ordinary sales pitch, honest! I wouldn't be fair to you if I didn't alert you to the most dynamically different magazine we've ever produced; the magazine which is certain to be a new milestone in the history of comics—the most talked-about, sought-after publication of the decade!

Hey, it's on the drawing board right now! We'll give you the final details next ish, ODYSSEY! Comics will never be the same again!

Excelsior!

Stan

your guard up, will ya? We warned you!

ITEM! Every now and then there comes a landmark in the ever-unfolding modern mythology that is the Marvel Universe—MARVEL TWO-IN-ONE #54 is one of them. The story is a powerful one, scripted by Ralph Macchio and Mark Gruenwald, and the art, by John Byrne and Joe Sinnott, is superb. What separates this from other equally beautiful works, however, is that in this issue a major Marvel character—a hero—dies! Do not miss it!

ITEM! We're becoming more and more impressed with the scripting of one Mary Jo Duffy, and from the mail we've read, you are too! That's not news, unless you've been on Tierra del Fuego for the last six months. The news is that with a little help from another rising star, Trevor von Eeden, long-time-superstar, Frank Springer, and a few other fabulous folks, MJ has concocted issue #58 of POWER MAN/IRON FIST, and it's merely terrific! Wait'll you meet El Águila, the most sensational super foe to make the scene in ages. His name is Spanish, of course, and it means "The Eagle". A certain delightful artist is responsible for brainstorming, designing, and suggesting El Águila to Mary Jo. —and we'll give a no-prize to the first ten readers who recognize his distinctive approach and zip a postcard off to us correctly identifying him! Go to it, gang! Grab your copy before they're all gone!

ITEM! The seventeenth issue of SPIDER WOMAN is on sale now, and it features a new character, who...well, all we can say is, you don't know weird till you've seen the Waxman!

ITEM! And while we're talking about new characters, we hasten to introduce the two newest characters in the Bullpen, namely Lovely Linda Florio, sparkling secretary and Rapid Ron Zalmie, peerless production person! Welcome aboard, troops!

ITEM! Just a reminder—be careful making those left-hand turns! We want to see you all in thrify. And bring your friends!
